In observing thousands of families, Bert Hellinger (the founder of Systemic Constellation Work) discovered age-old "orders of love," powers greater than the conscious will of individuals, operating in the depths of family systems. When tragic events perturb these orders, resulting effects are often felt in the lives of later generations who unknowingly carry the burden of unresolved issues out of love for their ancestors.

Almost twenty years of experience and research of the international Systemic Constellation facilitator's community revealed and confirmed that restoring harmony to these orders was a simple but powerful way to bring about resolution and strengthening for those involved. And most of us are seriously involved in systemic entanglements usually without a slight chance to discover the real background of all the symptoms of our miseries.

Examples of events and tragedies that may disrupt our own lives, the life of our children and the lives of future generations include: abortions or miscarriages, loss of parents or siblings at an early age, adoption, exclusion of some family members, suicide, emigration to another country, involvement in crimes of wars, genocides, or other crimes, physical or mental disability.

In this work, done in a group setting, an individual's issue is the starting point for restructuring the constellation of the family system. The group, while participating in this restructuring, experiences the process of discovering a more beneficial order where love flows consciously through the family system to foster health and happiness.

Heinz Stark has been an educator and workshop leader since 1972. His practice incorporates Art, Bioenergetics, Gestalt Therapy, Postural-Integration and Shamanic work. In 1990 he encountered the systemic work of Bert Hellinger in its authentic early stages. In the course of the experience, teaching and practice of Systemic Constellation Work Heinz contributed important aspects to the further development of the work and was one of the first teachers to bring this work to the United States. Long in demand in Germany as a teacher and therapist and founder of Systemic Integrative Therapy, Heinz Stark began introducing family constellation work in America in 1995. He directs his own in-depth training programs both in Europe and the United States.
